

Severe Weather Hits East Coast From Dakotas

By UNITED PRESS

The whip end of an "amazingly" long weather pattern extending from the Dakotas fell with a crack on the East, causing a rash of gale winds, severe thunderstorms and heavy snows.

Along the New England Coast Friday night, 65-mile-an-hour winds drove tides up to four feet above normal, and a Coast Guard cutter put out into 12-foot seas to rescue a disabled fishing boat.

There were 10 inches of snow reported at Worcester, Mass., and unofficial reports of foot-high snows in the Berkshire Mountains.

Winning through Massachusetts and Connecticut were received.

The new outbreak of weather violence followed an early March lull after an unusually hard winter. The U. S. Weather Bureau said the "sphere of influence of the storm center is amazingly large," as a wide band of snows covered about two-thirds of the nation's northern rim.

Now in its fourth day, the storm's heaviest blows were delivered in the Northeast. Snow was still falling early today, topping 10-inch snows left in the initial stages. There were five inches of new snow since Friday night at Lebanon, New Hampshire, three at Albany, and numerous two-inch deposits during the same period.

Moderate temperatures caused the mushy snows to snarl traffic in New York City. With 6 to 10 inches of snow in the northern suburbs, commuter trains were slowed and airline traffic cancelled and delayed.

The soaking snows snapped power lines, cutting off electricity to 5,000 consumers on Long Island while thousands of lights blinked out in Bucks County, Pennsylvania, homes.

Racing was called off at Lincoln Downs racetrack in Rhode Island, when jockeys refused to ride in the swirling snows.

At least 11 persons were killed in weather-caused accidents, a United Press survey showed, since the storm burgoned out of the Gulf of Mexico Wednesday.

Four persons were killed in a car-truck crash in Indiana during a snow storm, a plane crash killed three persons in Utah, and single weather deaths were reported in Illinois, Oklahoma, Texas and Arkansas.

Liquor Store Robbed at Little Rock

LITTLE ROCK (UP)—Three men at least one of them armed with a shotgun, robbed Oscar's Liquor Store, on highway 65, near the Pulaski-Paulkner county line, of an undetermined amount of money late Thursday night.

One of the men was taken into custody shortly after midnight, and officers had bloodhounds on the trail of the two others early today. The search was centered in a wooded area in the vicinity of Mayflower, about 17 miles north-east of Little Rock.

Officers said the men's car went into a ditch near another liquor store, and a truck driver helped them pull it out. The men loitered in the store for a few minutes, and then drove to the victimized store.

The clerks said two of the three men entered the store. One was carrying a shotgun. The bandits emptied the cash register and robbed the clerks of their personal money. Before leaving, they tipped out telephone wires.

They forced one of the clerks to go with them, but freed him unharmed a short distance from the store. He walked back to the store, and the other clerk had gone to another store and called police.

Pulaski sheriff's deputies, and state police, jumped the fugitives and chased them until the men abandoned their car near Mayflower. One was captured, and the two others escaped.

Bloodhounds were brought into the hunt later in the morning and were believed to have run the fugitives through a slough of water.

One was described as tall, between 40 and 45 years of age and wearing overalls and a light shirt. The other was about 5 feet 10 inches tall, weighed about 175 pounds and wore khaki pants and a blue shirt.

How DeAnn Won Contest

Back in 1850, John C. Clark and his son, Billy, settled in an area about 10 miles north of Hope in Hempstead county that is now known as the DeAnn community. Under the guidance of Billy Clark, now known as the father of DeAnn, the community prospered. With a school started, a post office established, a gin built, and other improvements.

But more than a century later, residents — and many are descendants of the early pioneers who settled the region — took a second look at the 1857 version of their community. They were not quite satisfied with what they saw.

There were not any hard surfaced roads and bridges were dangerous. Fences were in bad need of repair, and even the cemetery where the pioneers they boasted of lay had grown up in weeds. In addition, many of the homes needed repairs and remodeling. Looking still further they saw that they could improve on many farming and homemaking practices.

The school established years before had become a victim of modern consolidation, many of the residents went into Hope for Sunday worship services, and so the community "closedness" they had once had disappeared with the times.

On April 10, eight families met in the DeAnn Club house with Hempstead County Agricultural Extension Service agents to organize a community club in the Rural Community Improvement program. This is sponsored by the Agricultural Extension Service, Arkansas Power and Light Company, Arkansas Press-Association, and the Arkansas Council of Churches.

They selected Irvin Burke as chairman of their RCI club. Mrs. Wayward Burke was named vice chairman and Mrs. Vernon Avery as secretary-treasurer. Almost from the beginning the group started to work. In less than one year they had been named county champion district champion, and are competing with four other district winners for top honors in the statewide Rural Community Improvement program. Oliver Adams, county agent, and Mrs. Lorraine B. Wiley, home demonstration agent, who have worked closely with the group both expressed amazement at their accomplishments.

State judges will tour the community on Tuesday morning, March 18. But regardless of how they place in the contest phase of the program, DeAnn's residents feel that they have gained much more than they would just from the prize money to be offered.

As a group working together, the community now has 14 miles of hard surface road. As stated, the cemetery fence had fallen wood and a new addition had no fence at all. Now both are completely enclosed with an attractive new fence.

Young people of the community, although they attend several different schools, have had a big part in the progress of the community since the day in April when the improvement club was started. The first 4-H Club for the community in 1924 was organized last October and 14 members attended their last meeting. Plans are for a home demonstration club to be organized early in the year.

Improved farming practices have come into the picture — such as terracing, crop rotation, contour farming, cover crops, pasture improvements, and rotation in grazing. Two pasture renovators in the community help in the winter pasture program. The combines help save seed, grain, and soybeans for better feed and seed.

Two mechanical cotton pickers are in the community to help solve part of the labor problem. Selective tree cutting, timber stand improvement work, and woodland protection are being carried out extensively. Ponds have been stocked with fish for food.

One or some homes have replaced old ones. Some homes have added siding and fresh paint have added new color. New roofs and foundations along with interior arrangements and decorations have made most of the homes and outbuildings more attractive and comfortable. Modern water systems, including new wells, recently installed bathrooms, butane systems, air conditioners, new television sets, and other electrical appliances have provided more healthful and convenient living. A group effort to learn new methods of food preparation and freezing and canning has improved the farm food supply.

There is a Methodist and Baptist church in the community, and since the school was consolidated, hopes of the DeAnn community to hold the young people is through church training and worship. Although two denominations, people of the community look upon both churches as their community church. A building fund was recently started for a new Baptist Church building and everyone in the community has helped in tearing down the old church. A new graveled drive circling the Methodist church has provided more parking space.

By working together this 45-year-old community has accomplished a great many things in less than a year. And the better of the community back in April with Continued on Page Two

Off-Duty Officer Shoots Man in Leg

LITTLE ROCK (UP) — A 35-year-old white man was shot in the leg early today when an off-duty city policeman en route home found him breaking a glass with a dows of a Pine Bluff cafe.

He was identified as Edward Persinger. Patrolmen Charlie Patterson said he was en route home and heard glass breaking. He investigated, found Persinger, ordered him to stand still and shot once when the man bolted.

The bullet inflicted a flesh wound in Persinger's left leg. He was given emergency treatment and placed in city jail pending the filing of charges.

Patterson said Persinger had a long chisel and was breaking the glass at Green's Cafe, near Davis Hospital in residential Pine Bluff.

Says Sheriff Warned About Strike Probe

By DICK WEST

United Press Staff Correspondent WASHINGTON (UP) — Sheboygan Police Chief Steem W. Heimke testified today that Sheriff Theodore Mosch warned his deputies to "lay off" investigating violence during the bitter Kohler Co. strike in Wisconsin.

Heimke told the Senate Rackets Committee that the police department "stood alone" in investigating violence connected with the Kohler Co. strike in Wisconsin.

"In fact, some of the sheriff's deputies who were interested in this were censured by the sheriff and told to lay off," Heimke testified. "They were told any investigation would be by the sheriff alone."

But Heimke testified, the sheriff did nothing to help the police during a 1955 waterfront riot when a mob prevented the unloading of a ship carrying clay for use in Kohler plumbingware.

"It has been the general belief among police officers in Sheboygan that we could not depend on the sheriff for help," Heimke testified. He said an appeal was made to the governor for National Guard troops, but the request was refused on grounds that all the law enforcement resources of the county were not being used.

Heimke said the police force was put on overtime and special officers added in an attempt to stop vandalism, but when "we concentrated on one area it stopped and moved to some other area."

"It led us to believe they were getting information on our operations from somebody," he said.

The chief, who was police captain during the clay boat incident in 1955, said efforts to track down the persons responsible for more than 500 strike-connected complaints were hindered by "one word—fear."

"I don't know who they were afraid of, but it appears they were afraid of strikers retaliating against their homes, property and members of their families," he said.

Heimke said "informants" among the strikers told the police that threatening telephone calls to non-strikers were originating from the strike kitchen or soup kitchen. But the telephone company refused to give any information to the police without a court order, he said.

Radio Man Named to Parks Group

LITTLE ROCK (UP) — C. R. Horne, 35, owner and manager of radio station KXIV at Russellville, was appointed by Gov. Orval E. Faubus today as a member-at-large of the State Parks and Publicity Commission.

Horne, a native of Paris, Ark., succeeded Ted Woods, who was named publicly director by the commission upon the recent death of Sam Kirby.

Horne is a former mayor of Russellville, a former president of the Chamber of Commerce, and a member of the American Legion. He put the station on the air in 1947. He had attended Arkansas Tech at Russellville.

The governor also announced the appointment of Mrs. L. C. Byers of Hope as circuit clerk for Hempstead county. She succeeded her late husband, and will hold the office until the end of this year. Because of her appointment, she would not be eligible to succeed herself.

Accidents Take Lives of 28

LITTLE ROCK (UP) — State Police Headquarters reported today that traffic accidents took 28 lives and injured 226 persons in Arkansas during the month of February.

The figure was well below the 41 killed the same month last year, but more than the 20 killed in January. The February toll brought the year's total to 72 compared with 42 for January-February 1957.

Fire Destroys Racing Stable at Hot Springs

HOT SPRINGS (UP) — A fire which destroyed an independently-owned stable outside the Oaklawn Park Friday was caused by an exploding butane heater, according to the Hot Springs fire department.

One horse, Sir Stuke, was killed in the blaze. The animal, a gelding about six years old, was led from the Green and Morris racing stable, but jerked away from stable hands and ran back into the blazing building. It was valued at about $5,000.

Mrs. H. H. Mitchell is owner of Mitchell Stable, Sir Stuke and nine other horses in the stable. Her husband, H. S. Mitchell and a son, Dixie are the trainers. Another son, Bobbie, is a jockey at Oaklawn.

Six of the Mitchell stable hands slept in the building and lost all of their belongings. A Mitchell stake truck also was destroyed. The fire department estimated the damage to the barn at $6,000. Other buildings nearby owned by the Green and Morris stable were not damaged.

FCC Board Must Explain Its Votes

By NEIL MACNEIL

United Press Staff Correspondent WASHINGTON (UP) — A Frank Katzenline denied today that he gave or promised Thurman A. Whiteside anything to persuade him to withdraw his support of a National Airlines subsidiary for the controversial television Channel 10 at Miami, Fla.

Whiteside, a Miami attorney, testified previously that he urged ousted FCC Commissioner Richard A. Mack to back the National Airlines bid, but dropped the matter after Katzenline, a competing bidder for the channel, engaged in actions "tantamount to blackmail."

Whiteside did not spell out Katzenline's alleged actions. Rep. John B. Bennett (R-Mich.) said Whiteside's testimony "seems inconceivable to me. That's just something that I don't believe happened."

Katzenline, testifying before a House subcommittee investigating regulatory agencies, said Whiteside told of his decision to withdraw his support of National in a 1955 conversation.

"He said he was a fighter, and that he supposed he had a Napoleonic complex, but his family was involved and he didn't feel like going any further," Katzenline said.

Asked how Whiteside's family was involved, Katzenline replied "I suppose their ownership in a dog track." He did not elaborate.

In response to repeated questions by Bennett, Katzenline denied he paid or did anything for Whiteside to get him to telephone Mack and say he was no longer interested in National's case.

"I never promised Mr. Whiteside anything of any sort," Katzenline said.

Rep. Oren Harris (D-Ark.) said FCC members would still have to explain their votes on awarding the Miami Channel 10 to National Airlines even though they are trying to reopen the case.

Harris, chairman of the subcommittee looking into alleged misconduct in the FCC, told the United Press that he would not permit the FCC members to refuse to talk on the ground that the Miami case was again pending.

In a motion filed with the U. S. Court of Appeals Thursday, the FCC said it planned to reconsider the Channel 10 award to National Airlines in the light of "significant new information" turned up by Harris' subcommittee. The investigation has resulted in the resignation from the FCC of Richard A. Mack after testimony that his vote was influenced.

Harris said he had heard "rumors" the FCC undertook the unprecedented action to escape subcommittee questioning on their votes. "They are going to come in here," he said. "They can't get out from under by this action."

Harris has already announced the FCC members involved in the Channel 10 vote will be questioned, possibly next week.

Sen. A. S. Mike Monroney (D-Okl.) said if a review of the Channel 10 case "should show that all parties involved used undue pressure, then I trust the case will be thrown open for other applicants."

Old Cook Book Lists Many a Tasty Dish of Bygone Days

By MARY ANITA LASETER

"Yes, yes, learn to cook, girls; and learn to cook well."

This sage advice was found in "The Every-day Cook Book and Family Compendium" by Miss E. Neill, a cook book which belonged to the grandmother of Mrs. K. E. Ambrose.

The page with the copyright date has been lost, but it is quite clear that the recipes were designed for cooking on a wood stove. If the food seemed to be cooking too fast in the oven, the only directions were: "Open the oven door."

From making soup to roasting nuts, this book contains recipes for the entire meal. Breakfast dishes included such hearty suggestions as "spotted and beef hash," "Tipsey cake" was among the dessert and tea dishes, and its name was derived from its use of sherry and brandy, as well as custard, to improve old cake.

"A way to make butter in haste was taken from one who practiced it for several winters" and "Brine that preserves butter a year."

After the ingredients were listed the method for mixing and cooking was always referred to as the "mode." Measurements were often by "saltspoons," and a rolling pin was recommended for lacking meat.

Not only recipes for food are contained in this housewife's gem, but also recipes for making soap, washing blankets, removing spots and stains from clothing and furniture, making hens lay in winter, cleaning corsets, and killing mice.

One section of the book should have been entitled "First Aid," for it had everything from directions for making Pearl Smelling Salts to a Quinine Cure for Drunkenness.

Ladies were evidently interested in "Cosmetiques," for this book also contains the names of ingredients to compound for the removal of wrinkles in the skin, clearing tanned skin, making face powder, mixing oil to make hair curl, and such things as pearl dentifrice or (tooth powder) and wash for the hair (shampoo).

"The Every-day Cook Book and Family Compendium" begins and ends with advice to the ladies, for they are the ones for whom it was designed. Primarily, of course it is a cook book, and the introduction states the author's philosophy in these words:

"Of all the arts which the physical well-being of man, in his social state, is dependent upon, none has been more neglected than cookery; though none is more important for it supplies the very fountain of life."

Teamsters to Probe St. Louis Election

WASHINGTON (UP) — The Teamsters Union will send three of its vice presidents to conduct a hearing in St. Louis March 21 on charges that Harold J. Gibbons was illegally elected president of Joint Council 13.

Gibbons, administrative vice president to Teamsters boss James R. Hoffa, won the election last January by a five-vote margin.

E. D. Walla, the losing candidate, charged that seven deciding votes cast by Carnival and Allie Workers Local 447 were "phony," and should not have been counted.

Hoffa named Vice Presidents John Backhus, Philadelphia, Murray W. Miller, Dallas, and John T. O'Brien, Chicago, to conduct a hearing next Friday at St. Louis Chase Hotel.

The election was part of a program to restore self-government to the council. Gibbons had served as president during the trusteeship by the International Union.

He contended that Local 447 votes were cast "according to union rules."

Woman Burns to Death in House Fire

RUSSELLVILLE (UP) — The wife of the president of Western Arkansas Telephone Co. burned to death early today when fire destroyed the couple's country home southwest of here.

The victim was Mrs. Grace Lane, the wife of S. A. Lane. She was about 40. Lane was visiting relatives in LaGrange, Ga.

The blaze was discovered about 4:30 a. m. by Louis Golden, the couple's caretaker and chauffeur, who lived in a small house on the property. He told Russellville firemen and officers that he went to Mrs. Lane's upstairs bedroom and found the door locked and he was unable to arouse her.

Flames had burned the telephone wires, and Golden said he drove down the highway until he found a telephone and reported the fire. When he returned, the roof was falling in.

Firemen said when they arrived, the roof had collapsed, and the entire house was an inferno. The house was originally of wooden frame construction, and had been veneered with brick. It was on Skyline Drive, southwest of here, overlooking Russellville and the Arkansas River.

Officers said charred bones were found on Mrs. Lane's bed. Lane had operated the telephone company for a number of years. It serves a dozen or more towns in the Arkansas River valley.

Women Are Working More Everywhere By GAY PAULEY United Press Women's Editor

NEW YORK (UP)—Today's American working woman has plenty of company in other lands. The number of wives holding outside jobs is on the increase in dozens of other countries—Korea, Uganda, Thailand and Liberia, to name a few. The reason usually is the same as in the United States, reported a group of advisory secretaries for the Young Women's Christian Association. The women want to bolster family income.

Women also are moving into new fields of public life, the secretaries — 14 of them stationed abroad—reported at a news conference at "YW" headquarters here.

Hom For Consultations The organization brought the women home for a month of consultations. They represent the "YW" in Uganda, Liberia, Taiwan, Liberia, Central Africa, Brazil, Thailand, Mexico, Chile, Korea, Lebanon, Turkey, Ethiopia, Uruguay, Argentina and Bolivia.

Pretty typical was the report from Ruth Lois Hill, whose territory is Liberia.

"Status in women is rising steadily in various fields," she said. "More women being appointed to important positions in government, more women managing their own farms each year, a

New Border Clashes Dim Peace Hopes

TUNIS (UP)—New border clashes darkened hopes today for an Anglo-American negotiating team to head off a threatened Tunisian defection from the West.

A Tunisian communiqué charged Thursday night that French forces moved 500 yards into Tunisian territory along the border with Algeria. It also said five French artillery rounds landed near the Tunisian border village of Ain Draham.

The communiqué offered no encouragement to negotiators Robert Murphy of the United States and Harold Bealey of Britain in their attempt to get Tunisia and France to sit down together to work out their differences.

Tunisian President Habib Bourguiba put a one-week time limit on Western peace-making efforts Thursday by announcing that the United States and Britain have until March 20 "to prevent eyes from turning toward the Communist bloc or other countries." He indicated they could do this only by backing Tunisia in the dispute against France.

Rose was barefooted in this cotton Chinese pants and a loose red pullover. A warm smile followed her "Do come in."

The place looked even smaller, maybe because of the piles of papers and open books next to her typewriter. As I sat down on the couch I told her, "Turn around, please."

She spun around, looked puzzled.

"I like the outfit. You look good enough to have for dessert."

She hesitated, smiled and said "Thank you" and added "Do you want to take off your coat? It's been so muggy."

"I'm okay, won't keep you long. How's the article coming?"

"Fine. I'll be finished in a few days. Want a cool drink? I have an interesting concoction — corn-milk and ginger beer."

"I'll try some. How did you dream that up?"

"Always drunk it down in the islands," Rose said, walking to the tiny refrigerator, moving like a dancer. She poured two glasses of what looked like thin milk.

She sat beside me as she handed me a glass, watched my face as I took a cautious sip, then gulped it down.

"Ought to take a can up to my mother."

"I'll give you a can," Rose said sipping her drink. "I get them on the cuff — I write advertising copy for one of the Spanish-speaking newspapers."

I was certain I was blushing. It was crazy but the intimacy of it gave me ideas — and the cold drink ended them. I said, "Your buddy, Edwin Wren, must have had this in mind when he told me about a new drink."

"Edwin Wren? What were you talking to him about?"

"He suddenly dropped up in another case. What do you know about him?"

"Almost everything. He's 57, an engineer, married, has two daughters — one goes to Smith and the other is married to a doctor out west someplace. His wife is active in the usual middle-class class civic organizations. They live in an old duplex apartment on Riverside Drive and 82nd St."

"He lives on Riverside and 82nd?" I asked. That was only three blocks from where Owens was killed.

"That's right, lived there for many years. He goes in for modest cars — in fact the Wrens live modestly, although over a five-year period he has averaged $25,000 a year, above taxes. Wren & Company was almost a one-man affair till the war. He landed a couple of big subcontracts."

"Was he ever in any trouble — criminal stuff?"

"Never. This case — what's it all about?"

"I'm working on a double murder and his name popped up in connection with a check."

I said, knowing I was talking too much. "Where is Wren from?"

"Born here, graduated into the depression, tried to get a job in South America but—"

"Hold it. What part of South America, and when?" I cut in. Susan Owens worked in S. A.

"He never got the job. He lacked experience and in those days a company could get its pick. He worked on WPA for a few years and along about 1934 opened a small factory in the Bronx, made doorknobs and cheap electric chimes. He moved to his present plant in 1949 and has been growing ever since. If they can swing this wireplant monopoly he'll be in the millionaire bracket."

"He sounds like a solid aggressive business jockey. You sure he's never been in any beef with the law?"

"She gave me a full smile and said, 'Mr. Detective, let me remind you there are such things as civil laws too and they also can be broken. As my article will prove, Wren and the others are acting in restraint of trade and—'

"Easy there, I'm too tired for a lecture. What I want to know is, was he ever in any lawsuits, jams, anything like that?"

"Plenty," she said going over to a file cabinet and returning with a folder of notes, clippings and booklets. She sat on the couch, dumping the folder out all over her lap, she said. "He's had the usual manufacturer's lawsuits — suits claiming he had received damaged raw material. Here, in 1939 he was sued on a buzzer patent and won. One of his trucks ran down a man in 1940 and Wren settled out of court. In 1949 he sued a bank for $20,000, claiming some body named Butler had forged his name to a check for that amount and it was the bank's responsibility to check his signature. Handwriting experts agreed it was a forged signature and the bank had to make good to Wren."

"In 1949. What month? You know Butler's full name, if he was ever collared?"

"No. I only have a brief note on it. You said 'he'. I don't recall if Butler was a man or woman. But you can check the '49 papers or a newspaper morgue."

"I'm hunting for that corny needle in the haystack."

"But how does Wren fit into this?"

"I'm not sure he does except I don't believe in coincidences and he's beginning to figure in too many. But it doesn't add. I'm looking for a killer and he's just a business sharpshooter."

Rose gathered up her notes. "Do I detect a chamber-of-commerce, sanctimonious sound when you say 'business' the bigger the business, the more ruthless the—"

'Male Animal' Went Wrong, Says Critic

By WILLIAM EWALD United Press Staff Correspondent

NEW YORK (UP)—"The Male Animal" is a play with snips, snails and puppy-dog eyes, but Thursday night's CBS-TV Playhouse 90 version was strictly pap, cackles and a flop.

As I remember the James Thurber-Elliott Nugent play it was a vehicle whose main concern was academic freedom. It was a play with strong innards and witty outwards, a play with rasp and crunch and buoyancy. Thursday night's version was just too much wet pong.

It went wrong on two important points — on a domestic crisis that takes playing style.

The TV play almost sloughed off the point of "The Male Animal" — the right of a teacher to teach freely. Instead, it wobbled out, placing almost all its stress on a domestic crisis that takes place in the teacher's home when an old flame of his wife's, a former football hero, comes visiting.

And two, it failed on the count of wit. Where its playing should have had bounce, it was muddled, where it should have had springs, it sagged. There were moments of real wit in "The Male Animal," but they weren't evident Thursday night. It was all played like a broad farce, a kind of "Up in Mabel's Room" with books.

The direction was much too heavy handed and the casting was unfortunate. Andy Griffith, who played the college teacher, came off not as a beleaguered and bewildered male animal, but merely as a prissy bumpkin.

Edmond O'Brien as the visiting football hero went through his pages with a jerky forced overbearance — I remember the football player as a kind of obstreperous boor, but O'Brien made him seem like a maniac with hyperthyroid difficulties.

Ann Rutherford as Griffith's wife shuffled between two emotions — pain and despair. I can only say I was with her all the way.

CBS-TV's "Climax" Thursday night starred Ralph Meeker, Kim Hunter and Shepherd Strudwick, all of whom have demonstrated in the past that they are serious and talented practitioners of their craft.

That they were able to move through Thursday night's "So Deadly My Love" with some degree of believability is to their credit. It was a blip.

The Channel Swim, Gary Moore's swimwear show on CBS-TV next season will be a variety show built along the lines of the Steve Allen show, "Playhouse 90."

Movie and TV Gunplay to Be Bloodier

By VERNON SCOTT United Press Staff Correspondent

HOLLYWOOD (UP)—Gunplay in movies and TV, be it horse opera or detective story, will be a great deal bloodier in the near future thanks to a new wax bullet that spatters "gore" like a cloud.

Invented by an ex-butcher, the bullets are filled with red dye, weighted and balanced to produce various types of wounds on human targets.

Bit player Dan Metzger, who left his chopping block a year ago to ham it up on screen, boasts, "My wife has shot me more than a hundred times with these bullets and hasn't hurt me once."

Wife Tested "I've shot her a few times, too, for testing purposes, and she hasn't complained either," he said.

Metzger's paraffin slugs also ricochet off the ground in puffs of dust and give the effect of shattering glass and mirrors. He vows they can do everything a genuine bullet can do — except disable or destroy a target.

Fired by compressed air and a small cap, the bullets fit any calibre gun.

"They make a loud report and give off enough smoke to look real," Metzger confided.

Metzger horrified patrons of the restaurant where he was having lunch by producing a series of "blood" spattered cardboard targets.

Homemade "I make the slugs at home myself," he grinned. "I've already had a big order from one major studio, and the TV people are interested."

"The day is coming, I hope, when everybody who gets killed in front of a camera will be gunned down by one of my bullets. It's a real contribution to the industry."

Bit Parts: During last week's "Playhouse 90" performance Paul Muni wore a hearing aid—not to add drama to his role, but to receive offstage prompting. Muni said he had insufficient time to rehearse his role, Betty Grable, long absent from the movies, has landed a one-week singing job at Lake Tahoe, Calif., resort in July. Salka Lorey will be visited by Edward R. Murrow's "Person-to-Person" show March 21. Gordon (Tarzan) Scott and wife Yvonne announce they will live in a $80,000 beach house at Malibu with a miniature gym to keep Tarzan in shape for his was renewed for another season on CBS-TV.

ABC-TV is planning to run in some quickie fillers for three of its fading shows. "Face of America" replaces "O.S." on March 24. "Holiday Handbook" goes in for "Walter Winchell File" on April 4, and "Your Neighbor, The World" takes over for "Scotland Yard" as of April 6.

Five of the new shows you'll see on CBS-TV next fall are: "Pursuit," "The Magnificent Montague," "Philip Marlowe," "Rendezvous" and "Suspense." The Marlowe show will be live.

Frank Sinatra is ready to throw in the sponge on his ABC-TV half-hour show — if he comes back next season will be on a monthly basis. With Marlon Brando and Laurence Olivier out of the picture, the role of "Heathcliff" in CBS-TV's "Wuthering Heights" may go to Richard Boone.

Mutual radio's "Game of the Day" will be funded each Saturday in Canada starting April 19 — so far, 11 Canadian stations have signed on. "I Love Lucy" reruns look like the probable replacement for the "Danny Thomas" show on CBS-TV this summer.

NBC-TV's "Wide World of Sports" and Europe's Eurovision network will cooperate on a show "A Nostalgic Trip Through a European in the Spring." It'll be the last of 11 European countries on May 11 and shown on timescope here on June 8.

Yam Offers Hope for Birth Control

WASHINGTON (UP)—The roots of a Mexico yam may provide mankind with a simple and effective contraceptive pill, according to a medical researcher.

Dr. John Rock, director of the reproduction study center, Brookline, Mass., says tests with the yam produce results with "a few more hope" of lowering birth rates in heavily populated areas.

Rock reported on the tests in an address Thursday before the Planned Parenthood Assn. of the District of Columbia.

He said the pill is a steroid compound called progesterin. Although it currently is very expensive, mass production presumably would bring costs down.

Rock said the pill suppresses ovulation, and thereby prevents conception, women who participated in the Puerto Rican tests were instructed to take one pill each day from the fifth through the 25th days of their menstrual cycles.

In one series of tests, 139 women began taking the pills four months ago. Three stopped because of adverse reactions—mainly nausea or stomach upsets. Of the 136 who have remained on the medication, only one has become pregnant.

In another test series, involving 206 patients, 4 per cent quit taking the pills because of reactions. The others have taken the pills through an aggregate of 1,857 menstrual cycles, or "143 marriage years," Rock said. Among these, there have been 19 pregnancies. All of the pregnancies occurred among women who acknowledged skipping several days in the medication.

Grapefruit Loop Results Startling

By UNITED PRESS
Grapefruit League results may not be worth a handful of citrus seeds but it's obvious today why Mike Higgins is beatin' and Casey Stengel is steamin'.

Higgins' Boston Red Sox are the only team on the citrus circuit with a perfect 4-0 slate despite the fact that Ted Williams hasn't played an inning. And Stengel's New York Yankees have the worst record in the loop — one win and five losses — despite the fact that Mickey Mantle and Yogi Berra have been in continuous action.

The Red Sox made it four in a row Thursday when they whitewashed the Yankees, 1-0. In those four games, Red Sox pitchers have yielded a total of nine runs and 27 hits while beating the Yankees twice and the Pittsburgh Pirates and Chicago White Sox once each.

The San Francisco Giants scored their third victory in four games when they crushed the Chicago Cubs, 13-2.

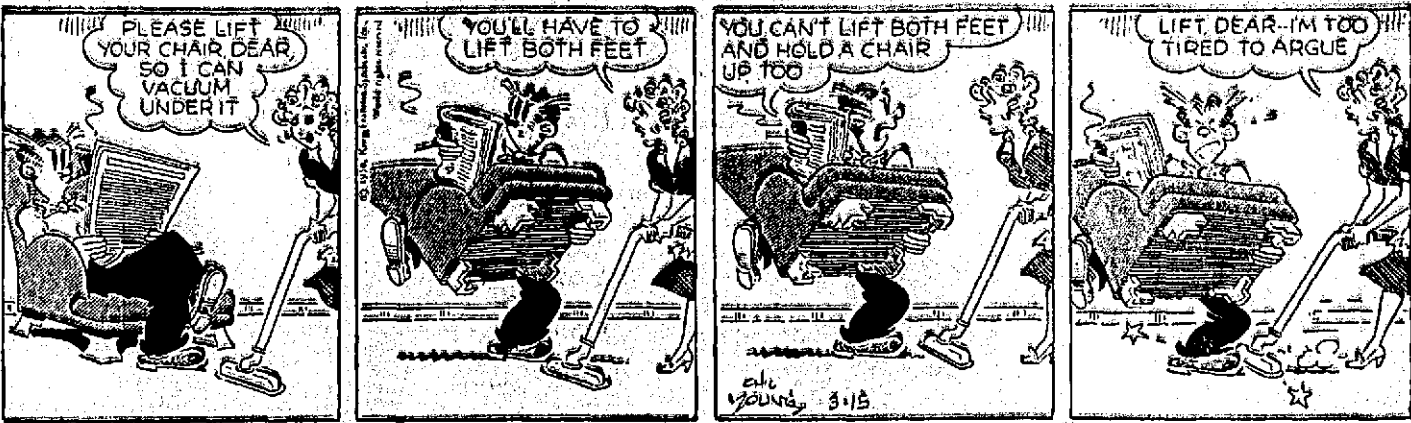

The World Champion Milwaukee Braves beat the Los Angeles Dodgers, 8-2.

The Washington Senators outplayed the Philadelphia Phillies, 9-1.

Outfielder Bobby Gene Smith was pressed into service as a pitcher and gained credit for the St. Louis Cardinals' 3-2 win over the White Sox.

EXCEPT THE LORD BUILD THE HOUSE THEY LABOR IN VAIN THAT BUILD IT

DESPONDENT

— life savings are gone. Physical comfort for these two, during old age, went out with the trash can. Disillusionment reigns here. These harried, cross, impatient faces reveal the pang of personal loss. It would be well for this household, as well as yours, to realize how futile things of the world really are compared to the things of God. When crisis like this tear at your very soul, — when your nerves are worn from daily reversals; — when tragedy all but overwhelms you, — do you ever stop to experience the Comfort of Divine Presence? Try going to church for a cure. You'll take on a different outlook. Money, and lands, and oil wells will pass away but the things of God are Eternal.
